Martyrs To Truth

One of the glorious pages of the war is the record of American correspondents in their effort to report truly to Americans what is happening in the whirlwind conflict.

In their relentless pursuit of the elusive truth, they have given life itself, suffered wounds and privations. Webb Miller, United Press European manager, died in a blackout accident. Ralph Barnes of the New York Herald-Tribune crashed to his death in a British plane in the Balkans. Leigh White, CBS, and Robert St. John, Associated Press, were wounded in escaping from Yugoslavia. Others have had miraculous escapes from bomb and shell, and have suffered every kind of intense privation and hardship.

In almost every case they have gone far beyond what was necessary merely to hold their jobs. They did it because there was in them a fire that burned to learn and tell the truth. To all of them America owes a debt. They are writing every day a story of high and unswerving devotion to a cause as high and as exacting as any cause—the service of truth.

Get Ready To Help

Americans are receiving appeals from 700 different agencies seeking to aid this cause or that, and most of them are, in varying degrees, entirely worthy of support. None, however, is worthy of more universal support than the drive of the United Service Organizations which will begin June 3.

This is the joint drive of all the major welfare agencies working to provide recreational facilities for soldiers during their off time. Soldiers on their free time with nothing to do but to saunter up and down the streets of a strange (and often a very small) town, are a sight which are a perpetual reproach to our defense effort. America, with all her resources, can do better than this. We have been slow to get to grips with the need for clean, decent places to which soldiers can go during their off time. But the problem is being attacked at last, and the $10,765,000 to be raised for 339 service clubs near army and navy camps and large defense establishments, is certainly a minimum. Here's a cause in which all may loin with a will.

· So They Say

Things are done by the people who believe that they can do something.—Dr. Ralph Barton Perry, Harvard university.

While Hitler has succeeded in invading Dutch territory, he has never succeeded in invading the Dutch spirit.-Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands.

I deny that the defense of the United States is dependent upon any other nation.—Herbert Hoover, former president.

We always will be building America. Let us see to it now that we build it right .-Abner H. Ferguson, Federal Housing Administrator.

The efforts of the Yugoslav government to maintain peace with honor failed because Germany was determined to convert Yugoslavia into a German colony.—Constantin Fotitch, Yugoslav minister to Washington.

• The Washington Merry-go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON - Yesterday The Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed how, through war risk insurance on shipping, the United States was supplying the axis with large sums of money and vital military information on the movement of cargoes.

Here is another disclosure of how one American pharmaceutical company alone last year poured $2,235,000 into foreign exchange channels readily accessible to the Nazis.

The firm is the Schering corporation of Bloomfield, N. J., manufacturers of highly complex biologicals and serums used by physicians throughout the world. One of these products is anti-shock serum, an essential for the army medical corps. Justice Department sleuths, tracking down sources of German revenue in this country, have disclosed these interesting owned. But in 1936 the stock held by Germans was sold to a Swiss banking corporation known as Chefa, which now holds large interests in Schering companies throughout the globe. Justice agents are investigating reports that Chefa is German-controlled.

When the stock transfer took place, New Jersey Schering entered into an agreement with the parent Schering company in Germany not to engage in the export business anywhere in the world. It promised to confine its operations solely to the United States, leaving the German concern and its subsidiaries a completely free hand in other markets.

Blockade "Conditions"

Then came the war and the British blockade. The parent Schering firm in Germany no longer could ship its medicines to South America. So the New Jersey company was given "permission" to move into this field-but only on three conditions. These were as fol-

1. That the U.S. firm deal only through agents of the parent Schering firm in South America.

2. That all labels be printed so that packages and trade marks exactly resemble those formerly supplied from Germany.

3. That the profits of this business be split, the lion's share going to the Swiss holding

As a result, New Jersey Schering, with a total capitalization of less than $500,000, last year turned over a net profit of $2,235,000 to

NOTE: Key man in the Justice Department's war industries investigation is Edward P. Hodges, brilliant young anti-trust attorney who will shortly publish his first book, "The Supreme Court and Section One of the Sherman Act." Stolen Tonsils Democratic glamour girl Evie Robert (Mrs. Chip Robert on more formal occasions) was sitting in the lounge of the Mayflower hotel. Suddenly she pointed across the room.

"There's Julian Greene," she said. "and I have a notion to have him arrested. He stole my tonsils.

"We were in the same hospital having our tonsils out, and I sent my tonsils in to his room so he could see them. And I haven't got them back yet. Mine were bigger than his and he stole them."

Steel Shortage

Those "business as usual" chickens of the $1-a-year men are still coming home to roostand to plague the progress of armament pro-

Everybody now knows about the grave shortage in aluminum, due to failure to get new plants started in time. Recently this column also revealed that an 800,000-kilowatt power shortage was expected by 1942, when defense production is scheduled to reach its peak.

Latest inside word is that a similar situation is developing in steel-a commodity vital to every phase of the defense program. A serious steel shortage would be disastrous to both the United States and Britain.

Like aluminum, the question of steel capacity has been a hot behind-the-scenes controversy for months. As early as last summer, some defense experts urged immediate expansion of plant facilities. The industry, backed by One Dollar Men denied that this was necessary, insisted there was ample productive capacity to meet demands.

Finally, after many weeks of argument, Gano Dunn, head of the J. G. White Engineering corporation, was asked to make an impartial report on steel, and his findings, in effect, upheld the steel makers' contention that new plants were not needed.

However, as a hedge, he promised another report in three months to keep abreast of developments. This report is due in a few weeks, but meanwhile a lot has been happening on the steel front.

30,000,000 Tons Short Dunn's report estimated steel requirements in 1942 at 91,000,000 tons. But the private estimates of OPM experts, based on the expected expansion of the defense program, now go as high as 120,000,000 tons, or about 30,-000,000 tons more than Dunn's total.

Inside word in the steel industry is that Dunn will boost his first estimate to 100 or 110 million tons. But even if he does, this will still be at least 10 million short of what OPM experts say will be needed. If they are right, the only solution will be a drastic curtailment of steel for civilian purposes.

That is what is happening in aluminum, and it may happen in steel before 1942. Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Ships, predicted this last week before the House Naval Affairs committee:

"There is not enough steel in this country for everything," he warned bluntly. "Steel is going to have to be rationed like aluminum. That is a question that has got to be decided soon."

NOTE: It takes from 15 to 18 months to build a blast furnace, from 8 to 12 months for an open hearth furnace, and from 4 to 6 months for an electric furnace. This does not include possible delays in securing construction

Proclamation On Wheat Marketing Given By Wickard

Quota Designed To Divide Limited Market Will Be Voted On By Farmers

Wheat marketing quota, designed to divide a limited market among all growers and to keep part of the surplus off the market until needed, has been proclaimed by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. The quota will be effective on the 1941 crop if approved by a two-thirds mapority of farmers voting in a national referendum to be held May 31.

Each farm's quota is equal to the actual or normal production, whichever is greater, of the farm's wheat acreage allotment, plus wheat from any previous crop. Since the national allotment is calculated to provide enough wheat for normal domestic needs, normal exports, and a 30 percent reserve, officials point out that consumers will have plenty of wheat at reasonable prices.

Under AAA Provisions

The proclamation was made under provisions of the Agricul- Allowance tural Adjustment Act of 1938 which calls for a quota when the estimated wheat supply exceeds a For Better normal year's domestic consumption and exports by more than 35 percent. The addition of a 35 percent reserve makes 1,019 million bushels, the marketing quota level.

Under the quota all farmers will be able to sell or feed without penalty all they raise on their acreage allotment, plus any old wheat carried over from previous years. This means farmers whose wheat acreage is within their allotment may sell or feed all their

Sanitation And Management Are Important Factors

It can be safely stated that the fundamentals of a successful poultry enterprise on the farm are sanitation and management. These two factors need to receive even greater attention now in light of the need for more eggs under the national defense program.

Any one of several feeds is acceptable but there is no substitute for cleanliness. It has been demonstrated time and again that it is possible to raise healthy chickens without spending one cent for worm pills or for disinfectants in the drinking water.

Coccidiosis, worms, and so forth do not rain down from the skies, but are the results of soil contamination. Proper sanitation and management practices will eliminate losses from these causes.
